

Taking in children into your house can certainly be a challenge. Behavioral issues, learning disabilities, emotional trials; all can be exhausting and trying for a foster parent. Yet, what many foster parents often overlook is the risk factor that goes along with taking a foster child into a home. As a foster parent, you become vulnerable to many possibilities, and it is important that you protect yourself and your family from the possible implications and investigations. Just as important is making sure you do not become overly exhausted and even burned out. Leading foster care expert Dr. John DeGarmo shares stories from his own life as a foster parent, as well as explores how you can care for yourself while caring for children in need. This eBook is a must for those foster parents who want to be the best care giver to a child in their family, while taking care of themselves.
